DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The step of operating the amplifier unit in "a non-overdriven condition" is not clearly recited in the specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, 4, 6, 7, 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Bell (5,898,342).

Claims 1, 2, 6, 7, Bell (Fig. 2) discloses a power amplifier arrangement having phase and amplitude modulation comprising: an amplifying unit (218); a signal processing (210) can be read as a DSP for controlling; a D/A converter (226); a switching power supplies (214) for dynamically selecting different positive/negative powers (V1-V3, -V1, -V2, -V3).

Regarding claims 4, 10, it is inherently seen in the signal processing (210) and D/A converter (226) of Bell.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Bell in view of Hirschfield et al. (5,826,170).

Bell discloses the claimed invention except DC/DC converter claimed.

Hirschfield et al. (Fig. 2) disclose a transmitter amplifier circuit comprising a controller coupled to a DC/DC converter to produce specified supply voltage.

Accordingly, it would have been obvious in view of the reference, taken as a whole, to have modified the circuit of Bell to have included a DC/DC converter in place of switching circuit (214), as taught by Hirschfield et al. Such a modification would have imparted the advantageous benefit of producing specified supply voltage as taught by

Art Unit: 2817

Hirschfield et al. (see col. 6, lines 20-28), to Bell reference, thereby suggesting the obviousness of such a modification.

Claims 5, 9, it is well known in the art that filter is a device that only enhances the overall output of the circuit. As such, adding a filter to a desired path would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The additional references (Isota et al. (5,142,240); Andre (6,028,486); Sigmon et al. (6,157,253)) show further analogous prior art circuitry.

These arts are deemed relevant and should be carefully reviews before any amendment is filed.
